

BASIC INFORMATION CONCERNING SECURITY SYSTEMS

Most security companies provide the same basic services. A representative will visit to determine the scope and price of the system best suited for your home's needs. A contract should describe the type of system, the duration of monitoring coverage, and all fees to install and maintain the system. Read contracts thoroughly.

Security systems operate in different manners but usually consist of hardware placed at, or directed at entry points that tie into your existing wiring and/or phone connections; this equipment alerts a central monitoring facility that a break-in may be occurring, then that central facility will ascertain that a break-in has occurred; the central facility then contacts local law enforcement to respond to the incident.

Security systems can be hard-wired, wireless, or TV /Video-monitored. Installing a security system can reduce your insurance costs, so check with your agent. If your insurance provider teams with a particular security company, that may entitle you to an installation and/or monitoring discount, or even greater premium reductions.
